Governors Entitled to Two Terms

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 16, 1901.

Though practically all the republican eaders in Ohio recognize the danger of defeat that will be incurred by the nomination of Governor Nash for a second term, they are agreed that the time is now too short and the difficulties in the way of making a change of candidates too great to attempt it. Governor Nash himself gerous one, and any attempt to use coercion would make the danger of defeat still greater than it is. So generally are the party leaders opposed to anything of that kind that there is talk now about the nomiposition to him from the anti-saloon re-governor a nomination for a second term.

Mr. Dougherty's Views.

publican party of Oh!o?"

The search for a candidate for lieutenan governor still goes on. Some think that John C. Rorick of Wauseon is hardly broad-gauged enough. The condition of Governor Nash's health is such that it is not at all improbable that the man elected lieutenant governor with him this fall may be called to the governor's chair by the death of the governor. Governor Nash suffers with heart disease, and has had several attacks. Among those whose names have been mentioned in connection with the nomination for lieutenant governorship this week are Harry A. Garfield of Cleveland, son of the late President Wells W. Miller of Erle county and J. E.

Plans of the Democrats.

Though the democratic state central com mittee has not yet been called together, it is known that the state convention of that party will be held in Cleveland on July 24 and 25. Col. James Kilbourne of this city continues in the lead for the nomination for governor, in spite of the handicapping of John R. McLean and other democratic leaders. Kilbourne is very popular with the rank and file of the party Agents of McLean tried to induce A. W.

Patrick of New Philadelphia to be a can didate for this nomination this week, the evident object being to divide with Col. Kilbourne the rural vote. But Judge Patrick refused to be brought into the race. McLean claims to be taking no interest in

It is understood that the democratic state convention will not nominate a candidate for United States senator. But John R. McLean will be the senator in case the democrats carry the legislature. No one has any doubt about that.

CROWDS GREET THE CARDINAL. Largely Attended Reception Last Night at Carroll Institute.

Under a canopy of crimson velvet, surmounted by the American and papal flags effectively grouped beneath his own coat of arms, Cardinal Martinelli shook hands with over 2,500 people at the Carroll Institute last night. Like the former receptions in his honor at the Catholic and at Georgetown universities, the attendance was a representative one, regardless of creed or sect. Introductions were made by Mr. E. J. Hannan, president of Carroll Institute, and Mr. Dominic 1. Murphy, chairman of the committee which had charge of the successful arrangements for the event.

An address of welcome to the cardinal was made by Rev. Dr. Stafford of St. Patrick's Church, who was characteristically eloquent. The motto of Carroll Institute. he said, was truth and duty, and its mem-bers had been ever devoted to it. The same motto symbolized Roman diplomacy, of which the cardinal was so able an exponent. In the course of his further remarks Dr. Stafford spoke in part as follows:
"Those who differ with us, or rather those who oppose us, do so simply because they have never conceived the idea of a world church, a church which, while de-voted to its doctrine in every land, upholds the institutions under which it exists, and, far from opposing, is the incarnation of loyalty to those institutions. SECOND ARMY CORPS.

An Association of Union Veterans Entertained.

Col. Charles Lyman presided over a meeting of the veterans of the Second Corps Association, held last evening in Grand Army Hall. At the conclusion of the regular business of the meeting Col. A. H. Nickerson read an original paper on "The Shenandoah Valley Campaign of 1862," when, on the 23d of March, Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson was defeated at Kernstown. The paper abounded in stories of the march, camp and battlefield. Col. Nickerson received the thanks of the association

In an interesting and entertaining way General Miles told of the achievements of that great army, of its victories and defeats, speaking in terms of eulogy of the valor of its soldiers, and not forgetting the fortitude of its oppo-nents on the field of battle, who were paid a high tribute by the speaker. General Miles' remarks were repeatedly interrupted by the applause of the veterans and received a rising vote of thanks from the

Forty members of Potomac Commandery,

No. 3, Knights Templar, in full uniform, attended services last evening at the Metropolitan M. E. Church, a special sermon being delivered by Rev. Frank H. Bristol, the pastor. Accusation Dismissed.

Robert Semrell was today arraigned before Judge O'Donnell in the Police Cours on the charge of keeping a dangerous dog. The dog was a silent witness in the case, which resulted in the dismissal of the accusation against his owner, at the request of Prosecutor Mullowny.

According to the evidence for the complainant the dog bit a little boy named Ed. ward Hoffman. The testimony for the de-fense developed that it was a frequent habit of Hoffman and other boys to hit the dog with sticks and stones, and wounds on dog were exhibited in court in proof that the statement was true.

Cassava-How It Grows and What It Looks Like. To the Editor of The Evening Star:

This is becoming a staple crop in some sections of the south, and also a very profitable one for farmers to grow When the plant first comes up it resembles what we, in the north, know as rag-weed, but as it gets larger the top has quite a bushy spread. The top growth of this wonderful plant is not what would interest you most, but it is the part that grows in the ground-the roots-if such you may call them. These grow in the ground near the surface, and develop very similar to the sweet potato, but are ever so much larger. From a single plant several of these enormous tubers are thrown out in various directions from a foot to thirty or more inches in length, and often the size of your arm below the shoulder, and each weighing a number of pounds. So front this you can see an acre of cassava would give you an enormous yield. As a food for stock it is very valuable, and every-thing on the farm will eat it greedily. It is also used on the table as human food, baking or roasting being the favorite way of preparation. It is also being worked up into starch, tapioca and the like, with exceedingly large profits to the grower and

This plant grows and produces bountifully in the southern states, but whether t would do as well in the north I am unable to say; a modest trial of it here with our farmers would not be out of place. As a root crop it is simply wonderful. CAPT. E. A. WILSON. Washington, D. C.
